

One day, the youngest princess, Lily, was taking a walk in the garden when her friend, Jamie, came looking for her.

“Lily!” he cried. “You won’t believe what I heard in the forest. Trolls are planning to attack your castle. You should tell the king and queen about it!”

“Don’t worry, Jamie,” Lily said with a smile. “As you know, my eldest sister, Rose, is the best swordswoman in the kingdom. She can take care of any enemy with one slash of her sword!”

“But...” Jamie started.

“And don’t forget about my sister Jasmine,” Lily said proudly. “She is the youngest magician in the kingdom, probably the most skilled too. With a wave of her wand, she can send entire armies flying!”

“Well, if you’re sure...” Jamie said, scratching his head.

“Of course! With my powerful sisters around, no one would be able to do anything to our kingdom,” Lily assured Jamie.

As Lily made her way back to the castle, she thought about her sisters and their talents. “I wish I had an amazing talent like Rose or Jasmine,” she whispered.

Lily felt triumphant for the first time in her life. Knowing she had a unique way of bringing peace and tranquillity to everyone, she never shied away from her talent again.

Soon, she became the best singer in the whole land. She still used her amazing talent to help her family sleep better from time to time too!
