

CHAPTER 10: HOW IT ALL STARTED

Back in 2000 when Gina and Becky started at USC they thought they'd have the normal college experience. The two Floridians arrived at the university via scholarship. They had all the same classes. They didn't know each other yet but they shared many similarities.

Both were into glamorous girly things like fashion, hair and make up, but not as much as the girls that stayed up to date with every trend. They both had high hopes for their futures with basic career plans mapped out; start as an intern at a nice company and work up to a management position. How could they predict they'd be handpicked by a government official and instructed to transition into a new secret lifestyle where they're expected to change the world? That's what happened to them in the second semester of freshman year.

It was hard for Gina to accept that the new life chosen for her wasn't a prank. During her first week at the Secret Influencers Academy she thought this has to be a joke right? She waited for an Ashton Kutcher moment when someone would reveal the real reason she was there. After a few months of classes she came to know that all of it was real and she realized what they were doing at the super-secret university was necessary for the evolution of humanity.
